that person shall be taken to have so known or believed or to have been so reckless, unless the court is satisfied having regard to all the evidence that there is a reasonable doubt as to whether the person so knew or believed or was so reckless.

(6) For the purposes of this Act —

- (a) a person is reckless if the person disregards a substantial risk that the property in question is or represents benefit of criminal conduct, and for those purposes “substantial risk” means a risk of such a nature and degree that having regard to the circumstances in which the person became involved with the property and the extent of the information then available to the person, the disregard of that risk involves culpability of a high degree;
- (b) references to converting, transferring, handling or removing property include references to the provision of any advice or assistance in relation to converting, transferring, handling or removing the property.

(7) This section does not apply to a person in respect of anything done by that person in connection with the enforcement of any law.

 - (c) the standard of proof to be applied in deciding whether property is the benefit of criminal conduct shall be the standard of proof applicable in civil proceedings;
 - (d) in determining whether property is or represents benefit of criminal conduct, a court shall have account of all the surrounding circumstances of the connection of the defendant and any other relevant person with the property including but not limited to the financial ability of the defendant or that other person to have or possess such property, the explanation, if any given by the defendant or that other person as to his or her connection with the property and the conduct of the defendant or that other person in relation to the property

(11) (a) As soon as the Court determines that the evidence adduced in the case gives rise to a reasonable inference that the property is or represents benefit of criminal conduct, the property shall be deemed to be benefit of criminal conduct unless the defendant by evidence establishes otherwise to the satisfaction of the Court. The burden of proof shall rest upon the defendant to prove that the property was not derived from criminal conduct;

(b) It shall not be necessary in any event for the prosecution to prove that the property in question is or represents the benefit of any particular criminal conduct or that any person was convicted of criminal conduct in relation to the property.

(c) Where it is necessary in the case of a money laundering offence alleged to have been committed by a body corporate, to establish the state of mind of the body corporate, it shall be sufficient to show that a director, officer, employee or agent of the body corporate, acting in the course of his directorship, office, employment or agency as the case may be, had the required state of mind to satisfy the element of mens rea required to ground a conviction.

(d) Where a body corporate commits an offence of money laundering, whether convicted of that offence or not, and where the offence is committed with the consent, connivance, or in any other way with the assistance or omission to act of any director, secretary, manager, auditor or accountant of the company or any person directing or person controlling such person, he or she shall be guilty of the offence and capable of being tried and punished as a principal offender.

- (a) that the property is the benefit of criminal conduct;

Pecuniary

78.(1) Where a person has been convicted and sentenced or otherwise dealt with by a Court, the Attorney General or a prosecutor on behalf of the Anti-Corruption Commission of Seychelles shall apply to the Court to determine whether the person convicted has benefited from criminal conduct.

(2) An application under subsection (1) shall be submitted without any delay, after the accused is convicted or otherwise dealt with, unless the Court decides that the application may be made at a later stage.

(3) If the Court determines that the person convicted of an offence under this Act has benefited from criminal conduct to the extent that it determines, the Court shall make a pecuniary penalty order requiring the person convicted of such offence to pay the pecuniary penalty amount.

79.(1) For the purposes of this Part, the benefit from criminal conduct includes any payments or other rewards received by the accused, including the pecuniary advantage which the accused has obtained, in connection with criminal conduct carried on by him or her.

Calculation
of benefit from criminal conduct

(2) In determining, whether the accused has benefited from criminal conduct and assessing the value of such benefit from the criminal conduct, the Court shall also consider the assumptions set out in subsection (4).

(3) Where the Court does not consider the assumptions set out in subsection (4), it shall state its reasons in the order for not considering the assumptions.

(4) The assumptions for calculating the benefit from criminal conduct shall be —

(a) any property appearing to the Court—

(i) to have been held by the accused;

(ii) to have been transferred to him or her,

at any time since the beginning of the period of six years ending on the date of the commencement of the proceedings in which the order is being sought in the case, was received by him or her, at the earliest time at which he or she appears to the Court to have held it, or it was transferred to him or her, as a payment or reward in connection with criminal conduct;

- (b) that any expenditure incurred by him or her during that period was met out of the payments received by him or her in connection with criminal conduct carried on by him; or
- (c) that, for the purpose of valuing any property received or assumed to have been received by him or her at any time as a reward, he or she received the property free of cost or any other interest in it.

(5) The court may not consider any of the assumptions under subsection (4) if —

- (a) the assumption is shown to be incorrect in the case of the accused, or
- (b) it is satisfied that the assumption may result in an injustice to the accused.

Pecuniary
penalty
order to be confined to realizable

80.(1) Where a pecuniary penalty order is being made under section 78, the amount to be recovered under the order shall be equal to the amount assessed by the Court to be the value of the accused's benefit from criminal conduct.

(2) If the Court is satisfied that the amount of the pecuniary penalty to be ordered is less than the value of the benefit from criminal conduct, the court may make a pecuniary penalty that is equivalent to the realizable amount.

Revision
pecuniary penalty

81.(1) This section applies to a case where an application has previously been submitted to the court under section 78, and the Court has determined that the accused has not benefited from criminal conduct.

(2) If the Attorney General or a prosecutor on behalf of the Anti-Corruption Commission of Seychelles produces any additional evidence—

- (a) which was not produced and considered by the Court at the time of consideration of an application under section 78; and
- (b) if the Attorney General or a prosecutor on behalf of Anti-Corruption Commission of Seychelles believes that the additional evidence may lead the Court to determine that the accused had benefited from the criminal conduct, any such additional evidence may be taken on record on an application filed by the Attorney General or a prosecutor on behalf of the Anti-Corruption Commission of Seychelles to consider that evidence for the proper appreciation of the case.

(3) On an application submitted by the Attorney General or a prosecutor on behalf of the Anti-Corruption Commission of Seychelles under subsection (2) and on consideration of the evidence submitted along with the application, if the Court is satisfied that the accused had benefited from the criminal conduct, the Court shall—

- (a) (i) make a fresh determination; and
- (ii) determine the amount to be recovered under section 78; and
- (b) make a pecuniary penalty order under this section requiring the person concerned to pay the amount so determined.

(4) While considering an application under this section, the Court may take into account any payment or other reward received by the accused on or after the determination referred to in subsection (1).

(5) While considering any additional evidence under this section, relating to any payments or reward referred to in subsection (4), the Court shall consider the assumptions specified under subsection (4) of section 79.

(6) No application under subsection (2) shall be entertained by the Court if it is submitted after two years from the date on which the accused was convicted.

82.(1) This section applies to a case where the Court has made a pecuniary penalty order (hereinafter referred to as current determination in this section) under section 78.

Further
determination leading to increased pecuniary
penalty order

- (2) Where the Attorney General or a prosecutor on behalf of Anti-

Corruption Commission of Seychelles is of the opinion that the real value of the accused's benefit from criminal conduct was more than its assessed value, the Attorney General or a prosecutor on behalf of the Anti-Corruption Commission of Seychelles may make, or cause to be made, an application to the Court for reconsideration of the assessed value and for issuing a revised pecuniary penalty order.

(3) For the purposes of subsection (2)—

“assessed value” means the value of the accused's benefit from the criminal conduct as assessed by the Court under section 78; and

“real value” means the value of the accused's benefit from the criminal conduct

(a) in the period by reference to which the current determination was made; or

(b) in any earlier period.

(4) Upon consideration of the application filed under subsection (2) and considering the evidence placed before it, if the Court is satisfied that the real value of the accused's benefit from criminal conduct is more than its assessed value the Court shall make a fresh pecuniary penalty order under section 78.

(5) The Court may take into account any payment or reward received by the accused on or after the date of the current determination, if the Attorney General or a prosecutor on behalf of the Anti-Corruption Commission of Seychelles proves that the same was received by the accused in connection with criminal conduct carried on by the accused on or before that date.

(6) While considering any evidence under this section relating to any payment or reward referred to in subsection (5), the Court shall consider the assumptions specified under subsection (4) of section 79.

(7) After considering the application filed under subsection (2) and the evidence placed before it, if the court is satisfied that the amount to be recovered exceeds the amount specified in the current determination, the Court may revise the pecuniary penalty order to such amount as it may think just and proper in the circumstances of the case.

(8) No application under subsection (2) shall be entertained by the Court if it is submitted after two years from the date on which the accused was convicted.

83.(1) Where an application has been submitted to the Court under section 79 or section 81 or section 82,—

- (a) the Attorney General or a prosecutor on behalf of Anti-Corruption Commission of Seychelles may also file a statement relating to the assessment of benefit accrued by the accused relevant to the determination of whether the accused has benefited from criminal conduct; or
- (b) if the accused accepts any averments in the statement, the Court may, for the purposes of the determination or assessment, consider the accused's acceptance as conclusive evidence of the matters to which it relates.

Procedure for filing statements to assist court in calculating the benefit from criminal conduct

(2) Nothing in this section shall prevent the Attorney General or a prosecutor on behalf of the Anti-Corruption Commission of Seychelles from making more than one statement.

(3) Nothing herein shall oblige the accused to make any response to a statement tendered to the Court by or on behalf the Attorney General or a prosecutor on behalf of the Anti-Corruption Commission of Seychelles or to tender a statement to the court under this section and no adverse inference shall be drawn against the accused in either event.

84.(1) Where the Court makes a pecuniary penalty order under section 78, it may direct the payment of the amount immediately or in a specified time in the order.

(2) Where the Court makes a pecuniary penalty order under section 78 against the accused in any proceedings, it shall take into account—

- (a) any fine imposed on the accused;

Matters to be taken into account in determining the level of a pecuniary penalty order

- (b) any order involving any payment by the accused; or

Making pecuniary penalty order where the accused has died or absconded

85.(1) The court may proceed with the proceedings filed against the accused, if the Attorney General or a prosecutor on behalf of the Anti-Corruption Commission of Seychelles files an application to that effect and make a pecuniary penalty order—

- (a) against the accused's estate if satisfied that the accused has died during the pendency of the proceedings under this Act; or
- (b) against the accused, if satisfied that the accused has absconded.

(2) The power conferred under paragraph (b) of subsection (1) shall not be exercised before the end of six months beginning on the date on which, in the opinion of the Court, the accused has absconded.

(3) In the proceedings under this section—

- (a) the Court shall not make a pecuniary penalty order against a person who has absconded, unless it is satisfied that the Attorney General or a prosecutor on behalf of the Anti-Corruption Commission of Seychelles has taken reasonable steps to trace the person; and
- (b) any person likely to be affected by the pecuniary penalty order shall appear before the Court and make representations and the Court shall make appropriate orders on such representations while ordering the pecuniary penalty order under section 74.

Appeals and compensation

86.(1) An appeal against a pecuniary penalty order made by the Court shall lie to the Court of Appeal.

(2) If the Court of Appeal allows the appeal in whole or in part, the Court of Appeal may, on an application by a person who held the realizable property, order compensation to be paid to the applicant if it is satisfied that the applicant has suffered loss as a result of the pecuniary penalty order; and having regard to case, the Court of Appeal may award compensation which it considers to be appropriate in the circumstances of the case.

(3) The amount of compensation to be paid under this section shall be such as the Court of Appeal may consider just in all the circumstances of the case but no compensation shall be paid to a member of a terrorist organization, or where it would be manifestly unjust to do so.

87.(1) On an application filed by the person against whom proceedings for issuing pecuniary penalty order have been initiated or on an application by the Attorney General or a prosecutor on behalf of the Anti-Corruption Commission of Seychelles in respect of a pecuniary penalty order, where the Court is satisfied that the value of the realizable property is inadequate to meet a payment, the Court may order such lesser amount as it may think just and proper in the circumstances of the case.

Reduction in amount of pecuniary penalty order when realizable property is inadequate

(2) For the purposes of subsection (1), the Court may disregard any inadequacy in the value of the realizable property which appears to the Court to be attributable wholly or partly to anything done by the accused for the purpose of preventing any property, including any property held by a person to whom the accused had directly or indirectly made an affected gift, from any risk of realization under this Act.

88.(1) This section shall apply where the amount ordered to be paid under a pecuniary penalty order is less than the amount assessed to be the value of the benefit that has been derived from the criminal conduct.

Increase in amount of pecuniary penalty order when the value of realizable property increases

(2) On an application submitted by the Attorney General or a prosecutor on behalf of the Anti-Corruption Commission of Seychelles, if the Court is satisfied that the amount that may be realized is more than the amount that was taken into account in making the pecuniary penalty order, the Court may increase the amount to be paid under the pecuniary penalty order, as it may consider appropriate in the circumstances of the case.

89.(1) Where a Court makes a pecuniary penalty order under section 78, the order may be enforced by the Attorney General or a prosecutor on behalf of the Anti-Corruption Commission of Seychelles at any time after it is made (or, if the order provides for payment at a later time, then at any time after the later time) as if it were a judgment of the Court for the payment to the Government of Seychelles of the sum specified in the order (or of any lesser sum remaining due under the order).

(2) Subject to the provisions of subsection (3), if the sum due under a pecuniary penalty order has become enforceable under subsection (1), and if it is reported to the Court by the Attorney General, that any such sum or any part thereof remains unpaid, the Court shall, without prejudice to the validity of anything previously done under the order, order that the accused be imprisoned for the period set out in the second column of the Table below subsection (5), to the amount of the pecuniary penalty order remaining unpaid.

(3) An order under subsection (2) shall not be made unless the accused has been given a reasonable opportunity to make a representation to the Court that the order should not be made and the Court has taken into account any representations so made and any representations made by the Attorney General or a prosecutor on behalf of the Anti-Corruption Commission of Seychelles in reply to such representation by the accused.

(4) The term of imprisonment imposed under subsection (2) shall commence on the expiration of any term of imprisonment for which the accused is liable under the sentence for the offence in question or otherwise, but shall be reduced in proportion to any sum or sums paid or recovered from time to time under the pecuniary penalty order.

(5) The service of any term of imprisonment by the accused under this section shall not expunge any liability the accused may have under a pecuniary penalty order.

(6) The term of imprisonment being served or to be served by the accused shall not be delayed or in any way affected by an order made under subsection (1) or by the appointment of a receiver and the term of imprisonment not served shall be appropriately reduced in accordance with the Table on receipt by the Government of Seychelles of any monies realized by either or both of those methods of enforcement.
